

How are we doing in Wales?

Public Engagement Survey on Health and Wellbeing during Coronavirus Measures

Week 23 (7th to 13th September 2020)

Public Health Wales are conducting a public engagement telephone survey to ask members of the public in Wales how coronavirus and related control measures are affecting their health and wellbeing.

The first wave of the survey ran from April 2020 to July 2020. The second wave started in September 2020 and will survey 600 randomly selected individuals every other week. The information collected from participants provides the basis of the results presented in bi-weekly reports.

Survey data are adjusted to represent the Welsh population by age, sex and deprivation. In each survey week, some questions are added and others removed, depending on emerging issues at that time.

This week's report contains routine measures seen in wave 1 reports and includes several new questions focusing on social distancing, extended households, face coverings, relationships and weight change during coronavirus restrictions.

We thank the people of Wales for giving us their valuable time to support this work.

608 Welsh residents aged 18 years and over were interviewed in week 23 of the survey (7th to 13th September).

61%

of people say they have formed an extended household; most commonly with one or two other households.

81%*

of people wear face coverings at least sometimes when going out; up from 60% in week 16. The most common reason for wearing one is for self-protection.

87%*

of people find it acceptable for people to be made to wear face coverings in public places such as shops.

76%

of people think social distancing restrictions should remain at 2 metres (up from 65% in week 16[#]).

22%

of people worry 'a lot' about going out in public places and 40% worry 'a little'.

91%

of people find it acceptable for local lockdowns to be imposed in areas with increasing cases of coronavirus.

56%

of people disagree with the statement 'I think most people are following social distancing guidelines'.

72%

of people would want to be vaccinated against coronavirus if a vaccine were to become available; down from 83% in week 16.

31%

of people say they have put on weight during coronavirus restrictions and 23% say they have lost weight.
